MIND WAGOES .- Some time ago the Leavenworth Herall mentioned that Mr. ANDY Dawbox, of Oscaloesa, was constructing a wind wagon in which he intended to go to Pike's Peak. Since that time the machine has been finished, and realized the most sangame expectations of the projector-carry. ing him through in twenty days. Encouraged by this success, other parties in the same town set about the construction of the same kind of wagons, and on Monday a party of eight started out on the prairies to try one which had just been finished. Death of John L. Schoolcraft.

The hopes cherished a day or two since,o Mr. Schoolcraft's recovery, were doomed to disappointment. Last evening news came that he could hardly survive through the night, and this morning intelligence of his death cast a deep gloom over the city.

The loss is one of which it is painful to speak, and which it is difficult, even yet, to realize. Mr. Schoolcraft has been identified with Albany from boyhood. He commenced mercantile life here with W. & H. Cook, was mercantile life here with W. & H. UOOR, was anbequently for many years a partner in the leading firms of Cook & Schooloraft, Raymond & Co., and on the death of Mr. John Townsend, in 1854, was called to the Presidency of the Commercial Bank, which he has held till now. Prudence and integrity brought, in consented to accept them; but he was ever zealous for others, never for himself. He held no political office save that of Representative in Congress, to which he was lew, even of those who knew him most inti mately, knew the full worth of his character, and there are numberless good deeds of his unostentations life, which have no chronicle gave in the hearts of those on whom they were bestowed. The loss is felt to be at once a public and a private one. Public and private interests alike profited by his profound knowledge of men and things, his unering and unbiased judgment. There are few, if any upon whom so many, in such different streets and homes of our city is the best and sincerest tribute to his memory.

Enjoying almost uninterrupted health for many years, the symptoms of disease which threabned him, a few mouths since, were scarcely regarded; but medicinal skill, when resorted to, failed to arrest them. His last act was in accordance with the indomitable energy and unselfish devotion of his life.—
Though unfit to leave his bed, he deemed that duty called him to Chicago. The journal of the control of th that duty called him to Chicago. The journey and the exciting scenes of the Convention hastened his malady, and on his return it prostrated him at St. Catharines, C. W.— Friendship and affection were not wanting in attendance on him there, but they could do no more than soothe his last hours. At twelve last night, he passed from earth .-

In some instances, at Stevens Point, the water rose to a point which ren-dered it necessary for the owners of goods and other perishable property to remove their effects to some safe place; and we also hear that the sudden rise of the water stole a march upon a number of the merchants there whose loss was considerable.-- Was paca Spirit.

SOMEWHAT SINGULAR .- There have been eighteen elections of President. In eleven of them the name of the individual elected ended with the letter N. With only one exception, the name of every President who has served two terms had this termination. In only one case has a candidate for re-slection with N final in his name, been defeated; and even in this case the name of the successful candidate possessed this auspicious termina.

The late wet weather has greatly impeded the work of construction, but it is now going forward again rapidly, and before the expiration of another week the cars will be running system of water works. With an unlimited source of supply in Lake Michigan, which pathes the Eastern front of our city, we only need here the necessary pumping apparatos, a receiving reservoir and the necessary length of pipe to carry the water to all parts of the city. There are parties ready and willing, we understand, to build water works here upon certain specified conditions, calculated to protect their interests and not onerous to the public. Councilor Lockwood, we learn, has an ordinance on the subject before the Common Council which is designed to for ward the enterprise. We commend it to the early consideration of that body and to the favorable opinion of our citizens.

WE ARE about to be "licked !"

The stiffness of our fingers, caused by pracicing at a sand bag to develop our muscles, almost prevents our usual display of chire-

W. W. VAI GHN, of Ructur. FLOOD CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT: J. ALLEN HARBER of Crast. THIRD CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT: N. LAKULMAN, AT Jefferson, Improvement of Rivers and Harbors.

Projects are on foot and bills pending in Congress, to transfer from the General Govexpects to the individual States the duty and responsibility of improving the Harbors and navigath waters of the U.S. Among these proposed measures, is one to improve the Rod River (Arkansas) by local tonnage duties, the l'ass a l'outre mouth of the Mississippi Biver, and Hell Gate, N. Y. Privals companies ask of Congress the Mississippi Pari, estimated to be worth (tolls) $250,000 per anzenn, and Hell Gate, $98,400 on present townses.

And a till has recently been introduced in the House of Representatives, giving the assent of Congress blindfold, and in advance, and without limitation, condition, or qualifiestion as to rate, duration, or any other pertienlar, to aus bill mhich any State Legislature may pass for imposing local tourings duties, for the purpose, real or pretended, of improving the navigable waters of the United States within their limits. The New York Times well says that such a measure, if adopted, would prostrate at char every safeguard which the Constitution has thrown round the National Commerce and abandon it, without protection, to the capitity or exprire of the several fitates.

The attention of the New York and New Orleans Chambers of Commerce has been called to those Tonnage projects, and both bodies have strongly condemned them. In the former, the following resolutions have been unanimously adopted :

Resolved. That the Chamber of Commerce of N. Y. regard the bill jerodny in the Senate of the U. S., gives the assent of Congress to the sate of Louelans for levying tomage during our shipping for the improvement of the Passa Plutter of the Massisppi, as unconstitution in spiril, and deeply injurious to the consistent of the U.S. for Chamber of Commerce of S. S. stree of the U.S. Even-rist, This, the Chamber of Commerce of N.Y. streetly remoistrate against any action by Congress wing he assess in advance, and without previous exgering to assent in surance, and without previous ex-sentiation or proper imitation, to any laws thereafter so so passed by any of the Phates imposing local ton-mage dults on the navigable waters of the United States.

It is to be hoped that these and other earnext remonstrances against the new and mis-Hastor Improvements under the charge and At the cost of the General Government, will avail to defeat the scheme. The reader will recognize in it substantially Mr. Douglas' plan of improving our Leke Harbors by levying Tunnage and Poundage duties on all sail or steam craft entering any of our Leke for the P-publican plan of making appropriations direct from the F-deral Treasury for the precidence of the General Government, will the appeal of Tyler against conviction for manslaughter, and consequent sentence in the st. Clair Court was set aside, and the judgment against Tyler confirmed on all sail of steam craft entering any of our Leke for the P-publican plan of making appropriations direct from the F-deral Treasury for the precidence of the graph of t tection of our Western Commerce. It finds the favor at the West and will, we hope, receive none at the hands of Congress.

The censure, therefore, which the Pioneer bestows upon Mr. Rick is equally deserved by the rest of the Demogratic Senators.

Bezest Old Abe.

These is nothing about the Chicago nominee that worries the Democrats so much as his solviquet of "Honest," That an honest man should be arrayed against them, is peculiarly distressing. It is something out of their line-something they are not in the habit of encountering, and so, in the novelty of the case, they all fall to ridiculing it.

The signs of the times strongly indicate that how sty is of more value than worldly emartn-es, or abrewdness. Integrity will suit the people even better, just now, than abstract ability. But honesty has an ability of its own. Integrity is strong and carries with it a wisdom that always commands reepect. It is something to be proud of, that, in the search for a standard-bearer, our clumber. And besides, it is found to pay being passed by the numerous aspirants better to get out the pure stuff. Black River and selected an Academ man. It is as refresh. and selected an honest man. It is as refreshing as novel to hear the press persistently claiming-not that he is brilliant or success ful; not that he is mighty, or of good blood; but that he is Lonest.

It would seem as though the events of the last four years had constrained people to marks, tobacco quids, &c., to bear in mind that it is desirable to have the work combelieve at host in the officacy of honesty, and, after all the noblest work of God is an honest

Excepting the loss which the country will sustain by his withdrawal from Congress, everybody will conceds that the nomination is one eminently fit to be made.

Mains is making ready to lead off in . September with an overwhelming Republican majority.

SEWARD AND DOUGLAS ON LINCOLN .-Mr. Alley, M. C. from the Sixth District of Massachusetts, in the course of a speech to the People of Lynn, at a meeting last

"No stateman of America ever experienced so large a share of abuse and misrepresentation as William H. Seward. Yet what nation as William H. Seward. Tet what public man, now that his nomination is defeated, ever received from his enemies a more universal tribute of sympathy for his supposed disappointment, and of admiration for his patriotism, his greatness; and his worth? Not one. He is more than President. (Applause) It may not be improper for me to south at these hierd him represent that he say that I have heard him represent that he knew Mr. Lincoin well and esteemed him highly—that he was an honest and able man, and that he would be as true to the principles of the Republican party as the needle to the pole. Good Logs.—The quality of logs put into Black River and run down this Spring is superior to any heretofore run; and from conversation with numerous mill men, we come to the conclusion that the quality of lumber running from this river will be materially improved. An old logger and lumberman tells us that loggers are just getting into the good pines—that the first cutting was done near the river and everything was taken because it was close by: but the quality taken because it was close by; but the quality of the pines improves as they go back, so that

From the New Orleans Delta. U. S. S. CRUSADER, May 27, '60. State Agricultural Society, held in these rooms, on the 5th inst., for the consideration of matters of importance connected with the Tenth Annual Exhibition, and pending a discussion of the alarming disease which has occasioned the destruction of so many cattle in Massachusetts, the following resolutions were offered and unanimously adopted:

Wyrrias, That contagious and most destructive discussion of the alarming and most destructive discussions. It is allowed to pass us in these slave hunter waters, or even to come in eight, without having her character ascertained.—As soon as she found herself an object of pursuit, the strange sail began to behave in such a manuer as strongly excited our suspicions, and at length put her helm up and ran in for the shore, thus taking the last and most desperate chance of escape. Unfortunately it her, the wind was so light that she was pr

Recovered, That it becomes the imperative duty of every State not yet invaded by said disease and of all regricultural organizations therein to discourage and by all lawful means to strive to prevent the importation of every description of neat cattle, until statisation; evidences shall have been furnished that it has been entirely extingated from the country.

Recolored, That, in pursuance of this conviction, we feel called upon, as the authoristed representatives of the Wisconsin State agricultural Society, to carefully exclude all such cattle brought from without the limits of this State, from competition at the annual fair to be finally displayed to see that her latches were all closely covered over, and to the grounds to be occupied for the purposes of the exhibition.

Recolored. That we do hereby were smooth formed at the minute of the state, from competition at the annual fair to be continued to expressed, the such cattle brought from the minute of the state, from competition at the annual fair to be completed to be completed for the purposes of the exhibition.

Recolored. That we do hereby were smooth to the grounds to be occupied for the purposes of the exhibition. as we continued to approach, we could even distinguish the peculiarly lost usome odor of a crowded slave ship. Under these circum-stances it was determined to board her, and and dealers in caute in Wisconsin, the policy of non-importation, not only as the whest measure of self-protection, but also as a particular duty to the weifare of the State.

Excellent further, That we respectfully and earnest-ty recommend to all the Boards of Agriculture, and Acticultural Societies of other States, a similar policy of non-importation. and, as we subsequently learned, threw them overboard together; so that when she was boarded she had neither papers nor colors, and was confessedly without name or nation-

For a little while there was a dead silence States of the Union, will, of itself, prove a sufficient incentive to a cheerful and hearty co-operation in the use of all measures that may reasonably be expected to stay the property of this fell disease.

J. W. HOYT, Secretary. ed the side of the bark, and the officer in command sprang on the deck, with a tra-mendous shoutthe hatches were forced open from below, and out burst hundreds, the selftrom below, and out outsi hundreds, the said liberated slaves. As they caught sight of the stars and stripes floating so near—which no doubt seemed to these poor wretches like a bright rainbow of promise—they became perfectly frantic with joy. They climbed up all along the rail—they hung on the shrouds, clustered like swarming bees in the slavder while rose from the scale the sky rigging, while rose from the sea to the sky the wildest acclamations of delight. They danced, and leaped, and waived their arms in the air, and screamed, and yelled in a discordant but pathetic concert.
There was one thing, however, even more touching than all this outery of barbaric re-

My attention was attracted by a group consisting of somewhat more than a hundred women. Their behavior was in strong contrast with that of the others, and was characteristic of their sex. Enturely nude, but innocently unabashed, they sat or knell in tearful and silent thankfulness.— Several of them bold infants in their arms. Several of them held infants in their arms and through their tears, like sunshine from behind a cloud, beamed an expression of the deepest gratitude and happiness. The new looked as though they had just been raised from despair to the most exultant glad ness.

The scene of confusion on board the bark,

The scene of confasion on board the bark, when the negroes found themselves released from the acoustomed restraint, backes all description. They had, of course, all been kept on a very small allowance of food and water during the passage. The first use they made of their liberty was to satisfy their hunger and thirst, which they did by breaking into the bread barrels and water casks, and then running about eating, drinking, dancing and screaming, all at once. It mattered but little to, them what sort of vessels they drank from—buckets, lowes and troughs tend but little to them what sort of yess-is they drank from—buckets, lowes and troughs were all brought into requisition. I even saw several fellows, happy and delighted, with a piece of bread in one hand and a wooden spittoon fall of muddy water in the other. As soon as their appetites were satisfied, the African fondness for thery began to snow itself and all, the loose articles in the ship were employed as personal ornaments. Some fastened belaying pins to their wrists, and some strutted proudly about with copper ladies hung round their mecks.

By this time, however, a detachment of marines arrived from the trusuader, and order marines arrived from the Grusader, and order was at once restored, and an organization es-tablished. The negroes were clothed with pieces of canvas, and the captain, supercarge and eraw sent on board the Crusader, as prisoners.

They made no claims or remonstrances They made no claims or remonstrances nominated, that he was honest and able, and there was no stronger man before the people in the Northwest." (Applause.)

But it was inevitable, the tidings came. She received a message announcing that the A—privateer had captured an English vessel of superior size, after a very sharp action, in which considerable loss had been suffered on both sides—and the brave Captain Emerson had been mortally wounded in leading the boarding party, and had sarvived the engagement but a few hours.—The dismaintailingues smote the tender, affectionate wife, as the chill and untimely winter gale smites the delicate unsheltered flowret, and withers up its source of life.

to a female heart is still stronger impetus, so lone and unfriended. He, therefore, though no longer the sole object of her reciprocal atno longer the sole object in her respirate at tention, experienced no neglect; as he had been accustomed to call Mrs. Clifford by the most endearing title "Mother," he son learned to love the baby with all the tenderness of a brother's affection. It is unnecessary and would be tedious to the reader to trace the children through all the trivial results with which childhood abound and with which unconscious infancy is replete. Suffice it to say, that as they advanced in years and growth, Harry became the constant companion, and in some manner the protector of his little friend, Alie Clifford. They were almost always together in their times of recreation, and if by any chance they were seperated, when they again met they had so much to tell each other of what had been seen and performed, that such little intervals served only to make their friendship for each other the stronger, and their pleasure in each other's society the more intense. Thus time sped swiftly by and they lived many years in happy ignorance before the true state of their relation was made known to them. abound and with which unconscious infancy

CHAPTER III.

Harry Emerson at length learned whose son he was, and what had been the fate of son he was, and what had been the late of his brave father and affectionate mother.— Great was the change that it caused; much of the childish and careless playfulness at once forsook him, and he seemed to have made an advance in mind beyond what could have been expected from his years. He was still no less tender and attentive to his little sister Alie, as he persisted fouldy in calling sister Alie, as he persisted tondry in caring her. Being young, the thought never once entered the mind of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford, that the calm, pensive boy had commenced to reflect upon his situation. It was evident, and they remarked that he was much more inclined to be alone than he had been wont to be, and had they been more particular in their observations, they might have retired were tenderness mixed with rein their observations, they might have noticed more tenderness, mixed with reserve, in his attachment towards Alie.—

Twas not that he loved her less, nor even that he loved her more, but, when he thought of her not as his sister, he feared to lose her fond love, and, at the same time, doubted that his wonted familiarity wanted now the cognizance of so near and dear a relation— At times, such thoughts would roll over his mind, similar to the molten clouds of a summer's eve over the still blue skies; and, nis mind, similar to the month clothes of a summer's eve over the still blue skies; and like those clonds which serve as a mirror to recieve, and reflect, the beautiful, the giorious, the inimitable traits shed over them by the sun, they received, and ameliorated and reflected the bright, wild and fantastic colorings of his fertile imagination. A romantic and imaginative cast of thought, hardly perceptible, took possession of his mind, and was propitious in bringing forth a train of pure, tender sensibilities, which otherwiss doubtless would have lain dormant in the unexplored recesses of his heart. Boyhood, that is so replete with its innocent joys, had scarcely passed away but his thoughtless playfulness was gone—especially such exuberant playfulness as boys of his age generally delight in. Unnoticed, to steal away and wander alone in the deepening twilight, beneath the shade of the branching oaks, absorbed in the plaintire, sad music of the increasing gala, as its fifth coats and with Alics Clifford. The song of the evening birds was then most sweet, the bright tipts of the golden twilight most purely ethereal; the sound of the evening zephyr, though plaintive and sad, spoke not of love, the murmurings of the meandering brook were the faint notes of half-heard music, and even the roar of the waterfall, though still, solemn and capable of exciting a deep emotion, was, to his awakened and delighted soul, the majestic voice of a power whose utterings had commenced with creation, and would continue as noweful, so long as the world tinue as powerfal, so long as the world should endure Alice Clifford was capable of perceiving and Alice Clifford was capable of perceiving and apppreciating the romantic and poetical feelings, which, at such times, took possession of Harry's soul. Still with the ever gay toying of a lively, happy girl, she jused to take pleasure in interrupting, his pensive moods by some frivolous remark or unimportant request, commanding him to gather wild flowers and wreathe them into a garland, beatting her dignity as the nymph of so beautiful a glen and stream. Often would she lay her sovereign mandate upon him to celebrate her in his lays, for the deep feelings which had been aroused in his hearthad impelled him to give them their appropriate measure and expression, and had taught him to clothe his thoughts in verse. taught him to clothe his thoughts in verse. Thus gidded on their days, till Emerson had reached his seventeenth year, and Alice Olifford was approaching her fifteenth.— Their constant intimacy had, by insensible degrees, become less frequent and less unrestrained. The sense of maidenly delicacy and propriety had told the innocent girl that though there was no actual harm, such free intimacy with a youth might be imprudent, though bred up with her from infancy, she knew he was not her brother. But the reserve which was perceived and observed by both, had in it nothing of coldness.

Slie did not long survive; she could not.
Her grief was to deep to be violent in its expression; but, while she sat alone, or at least in unbroken silence, her low, soft sigh, growing gradually weaker, seemed to be the passing away of her spirit; and in spite of her fond love for her dear babe, each day appeared to prepare her for that last great final change; and when December's cold winds sang low mournful dirges through the naked forests and the white robe of Nature had descended upon earth, slowly, gently, the tie which bound soul and body together was broken, and softly, like the breaz upon a summer's ere, her pure spirit ascended A EAVINGS BANK

Threats against Senator Sumner's L'fe.

Manifestory, June 9-3 P. M. Information was lodged with Mayor Barrett, without the knowledge of Mr. Summer that the latter's room was improperly invadad, and that threats had been made against Lis lite.

The Mayor promptly investigated the matter and procured an affidavit as to who the principal party was, and the subject of the language he employed towards Mr. Sum mer. Upon recertaining the fact that the of-fexd-recommitted the act while in a state of interiestion, and did not intend any injury intestection, and did not intend any injury to Mr. Summer, and also regretted the act, Mayor Barrett accompanied the gentleman, who gave his name as Captain Henry, to Mr. Summer's room about 9 o'clock to night, and he duly applicated to Mr. S., which was satisfactory to the latter.

Washington Matters.

Washington, June 11-3 P. M. It is stated that Mr. Blair has now receiv ed perfect vindication from the House, and established his legal rights. He is willing to resign his seat to meet Mr. Barrett or any other competitor. His friends protest against such a concession.

As there are two Capt, Henry's in this city, it is not a total with the creating with it is proper state that the one identified with the Summer affair is Jas. L. Henry, of Ky, an examiner in the Patent Office, and not P. L. Henry, Attorney, late of Virginia. The Pacific Bailroad.

Mr. King controverted this last statement.
Mr. Slidell admitted that some of the subordinate officers of the P. O. Department must have known of these abuses, but neither the President or the P. M. General knew anything of them.

Mr. King contended that these abuses resuited from gross misconduct on the part of the officers of the Government, and that his amendment to strike out words was necessary and should be adopted, because he did not believe abuse would necessarily grow up under an honest administration.

Mr. King's amendment was lost-yeas 24, navs 25. The first resolution was agreed to. Before the final disposition of the subject, Mr. Toomles insisted on the order of the day, it being the Civil Appropriation Bill, which was taken up and discussed at length.

The Richmond Convention. The Richmond Convention.

The convention assembled at moon.

Gov. Lubbuck, of Texas, was called to the chair, and returned thanks. He deemed his selection at compliment to his State. He trusted they had assembled for a trimph of principles and not for plunder, and that if their principles are repudiated they will go before the country as the true Democratic party with their principles emblazoned on-

Heavy Shipments of Grain—The Crops.—The steamer "Sucker State" which left this port yesterday for St. Louis, took down from St. Paul about ten thousand bus of grain, six thousand of which was wheat. This is an indication of the immense shipments of wheat now daily taking place from Minnesota. We have heard the amount of wheat which will be taken out of Minnesota this year estimated by steamboat men at 8.500,000 bushels. A necessity will arise in the fall for a large increase in our shipping facilities, in order to accommodate the immense amount of wheat which will be thrown into the river towns during the last mouth of steamboat navigation.
